Dear Prof. Lazar Lazić (editors in Geographica Pannonica)

Introducing, I'm Dr. Jiuhardi. I as the corresponding authors are interested in this journal. Allow us to submit a manuscript entitled Using Correlation to Explore the Impact of Corona Virus Disease on Socioeconomics: Case Studies in Indonesia*. Sorry if we submit articles via e-mail. Reviewer A:
Recommendation: Revisions Required

Does the English text of the manuscript require revision to grammar, syntax or English expression?

The English text of the manuscript requires revision to grammar.

Can you suggest improvements in the illustrations and/or tables? Are they all necessary? Are additional illustrations and/or tables desirable or required?

Improve the quality of the map. The information in the map is not clear. The legend should clearly indicate meaning of the graduated color on map, and what is the unit. Why the locations are drawn with arrows? Why not using dots.

Please indicate any errors or necessary improvements to the discussions of fact, interpretation or calculations.

The author does not have to conduct three correlation analysis at the same time and compare them. Use Pearson correlation when the data type is ratio data. Use Spearman's correlation if the data type is not ratio.

Are the experimental methods adequately described?

Not clearly articulated in the text.

Dear editors,

There seems to be a small change in Table 5 and Table 6, where the table title still uses 'Indonesian', so it needs to be converted to 'English'. In addition, the affiliation of the 4th author (Yana Ulfah) is not the Department of Economics, but the Department of Accounting. For that, it needs to be revised. All these changes are enclosed in 2 files marked with 'yellow'. Wish the best from you.

Best regards,

Dr. Jiuhardi Jiuhardi
